ORDER VACATING THE BANKRUPTCY COURT'S ORDER DISMISSING THE CASE AND REMANDING FOR FURTHER PROCEEDINGS

I. BACKGROUND

Before the Court is an appeal of the Bankruptcy Court's order dismissing Appellant's Chapter 13 bankruptcy case for failure to demonstrate good faith and feasibility. For the reasons set forth below, the Court vacates the Bankruptcy Court's order and remands for consideration of the facts and issues in this case in light of this Court's order and the Ninth Circuit decision in In re Welsh, 711 F.3d 1120 (9th Cir. 2013).

A. Factual Background

Appellant Edward G. Mycek, the debtor in the underlying bankruptcy case, is between the ages of 68 and 69. (Appellant’s Excerpts of Record (“EOR”) at 159, ¶ 2.) In 2008, after Appellant’s spouse became terminally ill, Appellant used one of his individual retirement accounts (“IRAs”) to help pay for her medical expenses. (Id.) When these funds were depleted, Appellant applied for a home equity line of credit against their residence, and the loan was used to pay for medical care and repairs to their residence. (Id.) When Appellant could no longer afford to pay for his spouse’s home health care, he retired early to care for her himself. (EOR at 159, ¶ 3.)

Around August 2010, Appellant underwent double bypass surgery. (EOR at 159, ¶ 4.) Within six months, Appellant and his spouse underwent five major surgeries. (Id.) On January 11, 2011, Appellant’s spouse passed away, and shortly after, Appellant suffered health complications requiring him to undergo physical therapy. (Id.)

As a result, Appellant was unable to pay his second mortgage payments and unsecured debts without depleting

1 his IRAs. (EOR at 159-60, ¶ 5.) Subsequently, Appellant
2 surrendered his vehicle and sought the advice of counsel.
3 (EOR at 160, ¶ 6.) Appellant owes approximately 4 $42,000.00 to unsecured creditors. (Id.) Five of the 13
5 unsecured creditors are medical providers for Appellant's
6 spouse's medical care. (Id.)

8 B. Statement of the Case

10 On September 23, 2011, Appellant filed a Chapter 13 11 bankruptcy petition (Case No. 6:11-bk-40144-WJ). (EOR at 12 323-75.) At the hearing on November 2, 2011 for the 13 confirmation of the Chapter 13 plan, the Bankruptcy Court 14 denied confirmation and dismissed the case. (EOR at 15 393.) On November 29, 2011, Appellant filed another 16 Chapter 13 petition (Case No. 6:11-bk-46138-WJ). (EOR at 17 1-54.) Appellant's schedules indicated that he is a 18 below-median income debtor. (EOR at 45, lines 21-22.)
19 On December 16, 2011, Appellant filed a motion to avoid 20 junior lien on his principal residence under 11 U.S.C. § 21 506(d). (EOR at 82-117.)

22
23 Appellant's Chapter 13 plan proposed to pay $155.00 24 per month for a period of 44 months. (EOR at 55-67.) At 25 the Chapter 13 confirmation hearing on January 11, 2012, 26 the Bankruptcy Court sustained the trustee's objection to 27 the plan, denied confirmation, and dismissed the case.

28

1 (EOR at 415:18-19.) The court noted that there was 2 "insufficient evidence for the debtor to demonstrate that 3 the plan is feasible or that it has been filed in good 4 faith." (EOR at 416:2-4.) The court entered an order
5 dismissing the case on January 12, 2012. (EOR at 132.)

7 On January 26, 2012, Appellant filed a motion for 8 reconsideration regarding the dismissal. (EOR at 133-9 285.) The Bankruptcy Court denied the motion for 10 reconsideration and entered an order to that effect on 11 February 15, 2012. (EOR at 295-97.)
12

13 On February 24, 2012, Appellant filed a timely notice 14 of appeal of the Bankruptcy Court's order and notice of 15 dismissal with the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel ("BAP").
16 (EOR at 298-305.) Appellee Rod Danielson, the Chapter 13
17 Trustee in the underlying bankruptcy case ("Trustee"), 18 filed a statement of election to have the appeal
19 transferred to the district court. (EOR at 306-307.)
20 21

22 Appellant filed his Opening Brief on April 20, 2012.
23 (Doc. No. 10.) Appellee filed his Opening Brief on May 1, 24 2012. (Doc. No. 11.) Appellant filed his Reply Brief on 25 May 14, 2012. (Doc. No. 12.)
26
27
28

1 On January 7, 2013, this appeal was transferred from 2 Judge Percy Anderson to Judge Jesus G. Bernal. (Doc. No.
3 14.)

5 On April 9, 2013, Appellant filed a letter pursuant 6 to Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 28(j) providing 7 the Court with a copy of a recent Ninth Circuit decision, 8 Drummond v. Welsh (In re Welsh), No. 12-60009 (March 25, 9 2013)<sup>1</sup>, that purports to be related to the issues 10 presented on this appeal.

11 12 II. JURISDICTION AND STANDARD OF REVIEW

13
14 Title 28 U.S.C. § 158(a) gives the district court 15 jurisdiction to hear appeals from the bankruptcy court 16 regarding "final judgments, orders, and decrees." 28
17 U.S.C. § 158(a).

18 19 The court reviews the bankruptcy court's findings of 20 fact under a "clearly erroneous" standard and conclusions
21 of law "de novo." In re Daniels-Head & Associates, 819 22 F.2d 914, 919 (9th Cir. 1987); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8013.
23 Under the abuse of discretion standard, the court first 24 determines de novo "whether the [bankruptcy] court 25 identified the correct legal rule to apply to the relief

26
27

2 2010) (citing United States v. Hinkson, 585 F.3d 1247, 3 1262 (9th Cir. 2009)).

5 A de novo review is an independent determination made 6 with no deference to the trial court. In re AFI 7 Holdings, Inc., 525 F.3d 700, 702 (9th Cir. 2008).

8 Therefore, de novo review requires the court to consider 9 the matter anew, as if it had not been heard before, and 10 as if no decision had been rendered previously. Dawson 11 v. Marshall, 561 F.3d 930, 933 (9th Cir. 2009).

12
13 If the bankruptcy court identified the correct rule, 14 the court then must determine whether its application of 15 that standard was "(1) illogical, (2) implausible, or (3) 16 without support in inferences that may be drawn from the 17 facts in the record." In re Taylor, 599 F.3d at 887 18 (citing Hinkson, 585 F.3d at 1262). "If the bankruptcy 19 court did not identify the correct legal rule, or its 20 application of the correct legal standard to the facts 21 was illogical, implausible, or without support in 22 inferences that may be drawn from the facts in the 23 record, then the bankruptcy court has abused its 24 discretion." In re Taylor, 599 F.3d at 887-88 (citing 25 Hinkson, 585 F.3d at 1262).

III. DISCUSSION

A debtor must file a Chapter 13 plan in a Chapter 13 bankruptcy case. 11 U.S.C. § 1321. The Bankruptcy Court shall confirm a plan if, in part, the plan is proposed in good faith and the petition was filed in good faith. 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(3), (7). In addition, the Bankruptcy Court shall confirm a plan if "the debtor will be able to make all payments under the plan and to comply with the plan." § 1325(a)(6). Denial of confirmation is a basis for dismissal of a Chapter 13 case. 11 U.S.C. § 1307(c)(5).

Here, Appellant appeals the Bankruptcy Court's order denying confirmation of the plan and dismissing the case. (Appellant's Opening Brief ("Appellant's Opening Br.") at 1.) The Bankruptcy Court dismissed the case because there was "insufficient evidence for the debtor to demonstrate that the plan is feasible or that it has been filed in good faith." (EOR at 416:2-4.) For the reasons set forth below, the Court vacates the Bankruptcy Court's order and remands the case for consideration of the facts and issues in light of the Court's order and the subsequent Ninth Circuit opinion in In re Welsh, 711 F.3d 1120 (9th Cir. 2013).

1 A. Feasibility under Section 1325(a)(6)<sup>2</sup>

3 Under the feasibility standard of 11 U.S.C. § 4 1325(a)(6), "a court may not approve a plan unless, after 5 considering all creditor's objections and receiving the 6 advice of the trustee, the judge is persuaded that 'the 7 debtor will be able to make all payments under the plan 8 and to comply with the plan.'" Till v. SCS Credit Corp., 9 541 U.S. 465, 480 (2004). To demonstrate that their 10 proposed plan is 'feasible,' Chapter 13 debtors have to 11 show that their plan has a "reasonable chance of 12 success." In re Bassett, 413 B.R. 778, 788 (Bankr. D.
13 Mont. 2009) (citing In re Hungerford, 2001 WL 36211305 at 14 *8 (Bankr. D. Mont. Mar. 22, 2001)). "[Feasibility] is a 15 finding of fact, which [a court] may not disturb on 16 appeal unless it is clearly erroneous." In re Gavia, 24 17 B.R. 573, 574 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1982) (citations omitted).
18 "[A] finding is 'clearly erroneous' when, although there 19 is evidence to support it, the reviewing court on the 20 entire evidence is left with the definite and firm

21

22 <sup>2</sup> At the confirmation hearing, Trustee requested 23 dismissal because Appellant's plan failed to account "for 24 any kind of surprise expenses." (EOR at 407:16-19.)
25 Appellant argues that since section 1325(b)(1)(B)
26 requires that all of the debtor's projected disposable 27 monthly income to be pledged to the plan, Appellant's 28 failure to account for "surprise expenses" should not be considered in determining feasibility of the plan.
(Appellant Opening Br. at 27.) Since the Bankruptcy Court did not state that factor in reaching its decision that Appellant failed to provide evidence as to the feasibility of the plan, the Court does not address that issue on appeal. (See EOR at 428:22-433:21.)

1 conviction that a mistake has been committed." Hinkson, 2 585 F.3d at 1260 (citing United States v. U.S. Gypsum
3 Co., 333 U.S. 364, 395 (1948)).

5 Here, the Bankruptcy Court dismissed Appellant's 6 Chapter 13 case in part because it found there was 7 "insufficient evidence for the debtor to demonstrate that 8 the plan is feasible." (EOR at 416.) At the hearing on 9 Appellant's motion for reconsideration, the Bankruptcy 10 Court found that Appellant "has not provided any evidence 11 to demonstrate that [he] can pay his other expenses" 12 after using 40 percent of his income to retain his 13 primary residence. (EOR at 431:19-432:6.) The court 14 held that Schedule J is inadequate since it is only a 15 projection and is "not evidence of future payments nor is 16 it even evidence of prior payments." (EOR at 432:9-10.) 17 Therefore, the court found that "simply relying on 18 schedule I and J is not sufficient especially for zero 19 percent cases that are already on the margin." (EOR at 20 434:3-5.) The court reasoned that "the need to satisfy 21 the elements of Section 1325(a)(6) are highest in zero
22 percent cases." (EOR at 429:24-25.)

23

24 Because Appellant proposed a zero percent plan, the 25 Bankruptcy Court here required additional evidence to 26 prove feasibility of the plan. The Bankruptcy Court did 27 not cite to any federal law, federal rules, or local

28

1 rules to support its additional requirement. Neither 2 does the Trustee's Opening Brief provide any legal 3 support for the Bankruptcy Court's reasoning. (See 4 Appellee's Opening Br. at 20-23.) While, as the 5 Bankruptcy Court stated, schedule J "is a projection," 6 Courts have consistently used schedules I and J to 7 determine plan payments and disposable income in a 8 Chapter 13 case. See e.g., In re Reyes, 401 B.R. 910, 9 914 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009); Hamilton v. Lanning, 130 S.
10 Ct. 2464, 2470-71 (2010); In re Barrantes, 2006 WL 11 2010792 at *3-4 (N.D. Cal. June 28, 2006). In his 12 Opening Brief, Trustee fails to provide any support for 13 the Bankruptcy Court's view that schedule J is merely an 14 unreliable "guess by the Debtor." (Appellee's Opening Br.
15 at 20-23.) Ordinarily, the trustee and the court examine 16 the debtor's budget to determine whether the debtor has 17 sufficient projected net income to pay all anticipated
18 expenses. See e.g., In re Slusher, 359 B.R. 290, 293 19 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2007) (emphasis added) ("Under chapter 20 13, a debtor must normally commit all of his or her 21 projected disposable income to payments under the 22 plan."). A Chapter 13 plan is, by its nature, a 23 projection of a debtor's future payments under its terms.
24 Additionally, the debtor in a Chapter 13 bankruptcy case 25 need not prove that the plan is guaranteed to be 26 successful. In re Anderson, 18 B.R. 763, 765 (Bankr.

27

28

1 S.D. Ohio 1982). Therefore, the Bankruptcy Court erred
2 in requiring Appellant to provide additional evidence.

4 Second, the Bankruptcy Court stated hypothetically 5 that if Appellant's expenses are inaccurate by as little 6 as $10 or $20 each, it would create a deficit over the 7 life of the plan. (EOR at 433:6-16.) The Bankruptcy 8 Court's determination of feasibility should be based upon 9 the facts before the court at the time of confirmation 10 rather than hypothetical scenarios. See 11 U.S.C. § 11 1325(a)(6); In re Anderson, 18 B.R. at 765 ("This Court 12 must judge the feasibility of the debtor's proposal as 13 the facts appear at the time of confirmation.").
14 Therefore, the court erred in considering hypothetical 15 scenarios to determine the feasibility of Appellant's 16 plan.

18 Thirdly, the Bankruptcy Court stated that "the need 19 to satisfy the elements of Section 1325(a)(6) are highest 20 in zero percent cases." (EOR at 429:24-25.) The court 21 noted that in a 20 percent or 30 percent case, a plan can 22 be modified to make adjustments downward or upward 23 depending on the circumstances. (EOR at 429:16-20.) On 24 the other hand, "[n]o such leeway exists with a zero 25 percent plan." (EOR at 429:20-21.) While the percentage 26 paid to unsecured creditors is relevant to the 27 determination of good faith under the totality of 28

1 circumstances, it is unclear why that factor is relevant
2 to the feasibility of a Chapter 13 plan. As stated 3 above, section 1325 requires that the debtor "be able to 4 make all payments under the plan and to comply with the 5 plan." 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(6). In general, the debtor 6 "has the burden of proof to establish, by a preponderance 7 of the evidence, that [the] plan complies with the 8 provisions of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Renteria, 456 9 B.R. 444, 447 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2011) (citing In re 10 Arnold and Baker Farms, 177 B.R. 648, 654 (B.A.P. 9th 11 Cir. 1994) (aff'd 85 F.3d 1415 (9th Cir. 1996), cert.
12 denied 519 U.S. 1054 (1997))). Neither the Bankruptcy 13 Code nor case law changes the burden of proof depending 14 on the specific features of a Chapter 13 case. The 15 Trustee's Opening Brief does not cite to any authority 16 supporting the view that a debtor's burden of proof 17 varies depending on the percentage of payment to 18 unsecured creditors; rather, Trustee merely quotes 19 portions of the Bankruptcy Court's holding regarding the 20 feasibility of the plan. Therefore, the Bankruptcy Court 21 erred in using the percentage of payment to determine 22 whether Appellant provided sufficient evidence that the 23 proposed plan is feasible.

24

25       Reviewing the Bankruptcy Court's conclusions of law
26 de novo, the Court finds that the Bankruptcy Court 27 committed error in finding that schedule J is an

28

1 unreliable guess by the debtor, considering hypothetical
2 scenarios, and altering the debtor's burden of proof 3 based on percentage of payment to unsecured creditors.

5 B. Good Faith under 11 U.S.C. §§ 1325(a)(3) and (7)

7 Under Title 11 U.S.C. §§ 1325(a)(3) and (7), a court 8 shall confirm a Chapter 13 plan only if it was proposed 9 in good faith and the bankruptcy petition was filed in 10 good faith. 11 U.S.C. §§ 1325(a)(3), (7). The Ninth 11 Circuit holds that to determine good faith, the 12 "bankruptcy court must inquire whether the debtor has 13 misrepresented facts in his plan, unfairly manipulated 14 the Bankruptcy Code, or otherwise proposed his Chapter 13 15 plan in an inequitable manner." In re Goeb, 675 F.2d 16 1386, 1390 (9th Cir. 1982).

17
18 The Ninth Circuit stressed that while a bankruptcy 19 court may consider the amount of the proposed payment, 20 "the court must make its good-faith determination in the 21 light of all militating factors." Id. Courts should 22 determine a "a debtor's good faith on a case-by-case 23 basis, taking into account the particular features of 24 each Chapter 13 plan." Id. In addition, the court can 25 consider other factors such as the debtor's history of 26 filings and dismissals, whether the debtor only intended 27 to defeat state court litigation, and whether egregious

28

1 behavior is present. In re Leavitt, 171 F.3d 1219, 1224
2 (9th Cir. 1999). The Leavitt Court identified these 3 factors in determining whether a debtor acted in bad 4 faith. Leavitt, 171 F.3d at 1224. However, courts have 5 used the Leavitt standard to determine whether a 6 bankruptcy plan was proposed in good faith.<sup>3</sup> See In re 7 Lepe, 470 B.R. 851, 857-58 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2012); In re 8 Walsh, 465 B.R. 843, 851-52 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2012); 9 Ingram v. Burchard, 482 B.R. 313, 319 (Bankr. N.D. Cal.
10 2012); In re Tran, 814 F. Supp. 2d 946, 950 (N.D. Cal.
11 2011).

12
13 The Bankruptcy Court considered the following factors
14 in finding that Appellant has failed to carry his burden 15 of proving good faith under sections 1325(a)(3) and 16 (a)(7):

18 First, the Debtor is solvent. The value of all 19 of his assets exceeds the value of all his 20 liabilities by $133,000. Second, the Debtor has 21 proposed a zero percent plan. Third, Debtor 22 received the benefit of a cash loan of $205,000
23 from a secured lender and yet seeks to strip 24

25
26 <sup>3</sup> Some courts have held, however, that the bankruptcy 27 court can determine that a Chapter 13 petition is not 28 filed in good faith without necessarily finding that the debtor was acting in bad faith. In re Lavilla, 425 B.R.
572, 576 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2010) (citing In re Guastella, 341 B.R. 908, 920 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2010)).

1 that lender's lien and pay the lender nothing
2 through the plan. Fourth, the Debtor is a 3 single person with no dependents or others
4 residing with him and he proposed to spend over 5 50 percent of future income to retain a four 6 bedroom home to the detriment of the general
7 unsecured creditors. The Debtor leased a high 8 end vehicle five months prior to filing the 9 bankruptcy case. The Debtor did not pursue more 10 modest transportation that would have freed up 11 more funds to pay creditors pre petition.
12 Sixth, the Debtor only made four payments on the 13 lease. Seventh, the Debtor extensively drove or 14 allowed someone else to drive the vehicle in 15 excess of the mileage limit and then abandoned 16 it back to the Debtor [sic] and eighth the 17 Debtor proposes to abandon the well used vehicle
18 and pay that lessor and other general unsecured 19 creditors nothing."

20 (EOR at 447:17-448:16.)

21
22 During the pendency of this appeal, the Ninth Circuit 23 issued its decision in In re Welsh, 711 F.3d 1120 (9th 24 Cir. 2013). The issue before the court in Welsh was 25 whether payments to secured creditors and Social Security 26 income, "while properly accounted for in the calculation 27 of disposable income, nevertheless may be considered as 28

1 evidence that the plan was not proposed in good faith 2 under 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(3).” In re Welsh, 711 F.3d at 3 1126 n. 28. The Ninth Circuit held that a court may not 4 consider a debtor’s social security income or a debtor’s 5 payments to secured creditors as part of the inquiry into 6 good faith under 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a). Id. at 1135. Even 7 though the court in Welsh focused on these issues as they 8 pertain to an above-median income debtor, the Court finds 9 that the analysis in Welsh could potentially be relevant 10 to the issues presented in this case. See In re Berry, 11 2013 WL 249862, at *3 (Bankr. E.D. Wash. Jan. 23, 2013)
12 (finding that the court’s logic and analysis in In re 13 Welsh, 465 B.R. 843 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2012) pertaining to 14 the calculation of disposable income for above-median 15 income debtors was relevant to an analysis under 11
16 U.S.C. § 1325(b)(2) relating to below-median income 17 debtors). Accordingly, the Court vacates the Bankruptcy 18 Court’s order and remands the case for consideration of 19 the facts and issues in light of the Ninth Circuit 20 decision in Welsh.

22 C. Minimum Payment Requirement to Unsecured Creditors

23

24 Appellant states in his Reply Brief that “[t]he 25 underlying basis of this appeal stems from the fact that 26 an arbitrary policy requiring a 10% minimum payment to 27 unsecured creditors has been imposed on Chapter 13

1 debtors by [the] Bankruptcy Court." (Appellant's Reply 2 Br. at 14.) The Bankruptcy Court discussed the issue of 3 minimum repayment in dismissing the first Chapter 13 4 case. (EOR at 394:14-396:13.) Appellant argues that the 5 Bankruptcy Court misapplied the rationale of the In re 6 Tran case without considering the totality of 7 circumstances of this specific case.<sup>4</sup> (Appellant's Reply 8 Br. at 15.)

10 The Bankruptcy Court's discussion of In re Tran and 11 minimum percentage of payment to unsecured creditors
12 occurred at the confirmation hearing for Appellant's 13 first Chapter 13 bankruptcy case (Case No. 11-40144).
14 (EOR at 389-399.) The court dismissed that case on 15 November 2, 2011. (EOR at 393:18-19.) The appeal now 16 before the Court pertains to Appellant's second 17 bankruptcy case (Case No. 11-46138). At the confirmation 18 hearing for Appellant's second bankruptcy case, the 19 Bankruptcy Court explicitly stated that its comments 20 should not be construed to suggest that a "10 percent 21 plan would solve" the lack of good faith issue. (EOR at 22 454:10-13.) In addition, even though the court

27 to unsecured creditors in upholding the bankruptcy 28 court's finding that the debtor was not acting in good faith. Tran, 814 F. Supp. 2d at 950-51. In that case, the debtor filed a chapter 7 case, obtained a discharge, and subsequently filed a Chapter 13 case.

2 the court did identify a specific percentage payment to 3 unsecured creditors as a requirement for confirmation of 4 the plan. (EOR at 447:21-448:16.) On the record 5 presented in this case, the Bankruptcy Court did not 6 impose a minimum percentage requirement. Therefore, the 7 Court does not address the issue of whether the 8 Bankruptcy Court can impose a minimum percentage 9 repayment to unsecured creditors as a prerequisite to 10 finding good faith.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, the Court vacates the Bankruptcy Court's order and remands for consideration of the facts and issues in this case in light of this Court's order and the Ninth Circuit decision in In re Welsh, 711 F.3d 1120 (9th Cir. 2013).
